their mark not only on Corfu by building the Governor's Palace, which was built by the Maltese using stone imported from Malta, but many Maltese were even instrumental in building the parliamentary building in Athens." Marise Samara has pursued a banking career in Greece. Despite the fact that she has been away from Malta for half a century she says she feels close to Malta and considers herself Maltese. "My father used to write me letters, he used to inform me on everything, and I always kept in touch with Malta, now of course it's easy because of the digital system."

In Greece there are around 3,500 people with a Maltese connection, the majority of whom live in Corfu where Greeks of Maltese have settled, and where one finds even fourth and fifth generation Maltese. During his visit to Greece, President George Vella met with representatives of the Maltese community in Athens who are making the Maltese identity proud by retaining Maltese traditions and passing them on to the next generation. Spiros Gauci is the Maltese consulate to Corfu, and is fifth generation Maltese. He can speak English, Italian, Greek and even a few words in Maltese. Despite the fact that his forefathers settled in Corfu at the beginning of the 19th century, he says the Maltese identity is still present on the island.

"We are trying to search our roots, we always have a nostalgia about the land of our ancestors, and we are trying to have a connection with Malta and the Maltese authorities there. "There are around 3,500 Maltese people in Greece or else Maltese citizens who have roots and connections with Malta, particular a large number, around 3,000, in Corfu alone. The Maltese Ambassador to Greece, Joseph Cuschieri, said that the presence of the Maltese is spread from Heraklion to Piraeus which is a crucial port for the maritime industry He said that in the capital, Athens there are around 100 Maltese citizens. "The Maltese left

Lina Calleja left Malta many years ago and is proud that her children have taken an interest in Malta. "Yes definitely I bring them to Malta because they really love it, and the oldest can say a few words like furketta and sikkina..." President George Vella said that Malta and Greece are celebrating 53 years of diplomatic relations and expressed his appreciation that the Maltese who live here showed him how much they hold Malta close to their hearts. "Some have been here 40, 50 years, some have never come to Malta because obviously the Corfu community goes back to 1819. I met with many interesting people who have built a career here and I enjoy seeing the respect they have towards what Malta represents today." The President was in Greece for the Arraiolos meeting which brings together Presidents from EU countries who have an executive role.

Joseph Xerri ... Malti b'suċċess fil-ġurnalizmu fl-Awstralja

Miktub minn iNews

*Mill-Union Print għal Maltese Herald fl-Awstralja
... Joseph Xerri jishaq fuq il-bżonn kontinwu li nsaħħu il-legat bejn Malta u l-Maltin li jgħixu barra*

"Li żżomm gazzetta għaddejja għal ammont ta' snin hija diffiċli minnha nnifisha: meta din il-gazzetta kellha taqsam kontinenti sħaħ, biex minn Malta tasal l-Awstralja, tista timmagina x-xogħol li kellu bżonn isir biex dan iseħħ. Kuntent li dan imnexxielna nagħmluh għal ħames diċennji bla waqfien." Sahaq dan Joseph Xerri, wiehed mill-imħuħ wara l-Maltese Herald, f'intervista mal-Orizzont.

Il-Maltese Herald kienet pubblikazzjoni li serviet ta' konnessjoni konkreta bejn Malta, u l-kommunita Maltija ġewwa l-Awstralja. "Għal ħamsin sena bla waqfien, il-gazzetta kienet toħroġ ġewwa l-kommunita Maltija fl-Awstralja: Għall-ewwel, darba kull ħmistax, pero eventwalment żidna r-ritmu ta' pubblikazzjoni għal darba kull tmint'ijiem. Kienu biss l-introduzzjoni ta' teknoloġiji ta' komunikazzjoni godda, li l-gazzetta kellha tieqaf, pero sal-ġurnata tal-lum, l-isem "The Maltese Herald" għadu fuq l-ilsien ta' bosta qarrejja."

U x'kien l-involviment tal-Orizzont f'dan kollu? Xerri jishaq li l-impjegati tal-Union Press kellhom rwol kruċjali fejn jidhul l-istampar: "Wahda mill-ikbar għajnuniet li sibna aħna kienet meta jiġu għar-ritratti. Fl-antik, ir-ritratti kienu jiġu mpaġnati fuq il-gazzetta permezz ta' blokok tal-ħadid, blokok li kienu fizikament tqal u għalja. Madanakollu, grazzi għall-għajnuna tal-Union Print, u tal-ħaddiema u l-impjaġnaturi mal-Orizzont u t-Torċa, dawn il-blokok kienu jingħataw lilna b'xejn. Apparti hekk, bħala gazzetta kienu jipprovdu l-assistenza tagħhom kull meta tlabniha."

Itqajna ma' Xerri fit-tmiem tal-laqgħa annwali tal-Kunsill għall-Maltin li Jaħdmu Barra (CMLA). Dan il-Kunsill, immexxi mill-Ministru għall-Affarijiet Barranin u l-Promozzjoni tal-Kummerċ Carmelo Abela, kien qiegħed jiddiskuti numru ta' sfidi, kif ukoll opportunitajiet godda, biex il-kommunita Maltija estera u d-dixxendenti tagħhom ssaħħu il-legat li għandhom ma' pajjiż twelidhom.

Xerri, li huwa s-Segretarju attwali ta' dan il-kunsill, ddeskriva b'mod pożittiv l-andament ta' din il-laqgħa: "Kellna laqgħat tajbin ħafna, nazzarda ngħid iktar produttivi minn daww tas-snin preċedenti, u dan minħabba l-volum ta' proposti u sfidi li ġew diskuss. Ovjament, hemm affarijiet oħrajn li għad fadal biex isiru, u hemm numru ta' deċiżjonijiet li aħna bħala Kunsill irridu nieħdu fil-viċin."

"Fost it-temi diskussi, kien hemm l-edukazzjoni u t-tqassim tat-tagħrif mal-kommunitajiet Maltin barra minn xtutna. Din hija tema għal qalbi ħafna, għalhiex jiena għomri naħdem fis-settur edukattiv. Tant hu hekk, li ngħid li jiena dħalt fl-iskola meta kont għadni tifel, u qatt ma ħriġt minn hemm."

Bħala Segretarju tas-CMLA, Xerri tenna li huwa qiegħed iħares il-quddiem għas-sena d-dieħla, fejn apparti l-laqgħa annwali tal-Kunsill, f'Ottubru 2020 il-Ministeru tal-Affarijiet Barranin se jorganizza Konvenzjoni għall-Maltin kollha li jgħixu barra. "Inħares il-quddiem għad-diskussjoni fuq numru ta' proposti godda, biex inkomplu nsaħħu l-legat bejn Malta u l-Maltin barra."

F'kumment ma' dan il-ġurnal, il-Ministeru Abela sahaq li parti kbira mill-Konvenzjoni se jra tkun maqsuma fi gruppi żgħar, magħmulin minn partecipanti Maltin li jgħixu barra. "Huwa permezz ta' dan il-Kunsill, li bħala Ministeru se jrin inkomplu nipromwovu d-drittijiet u l-interessi tal-Maltin li jgħixu barra minn xtutna."

"B'hekk, dan il-Kunsill jista jitqies bħala l-vejikolu ufficjali, li minnu joħroġu idejat li jipromwovu l-interessi u l-vuċi tal-Maltin barra minn Malta, liema proposti imbagħad jiġu mplimentati mill-Gvern Ċentrali."

President discusses migration during Greece visit

Calls for solidarity with countries affected by refugee crisis

President George Vella stressed the importance of solidarity with countries affected by migration and the refugee crisis in the Mediterranean as he addressed his first Arraiolos meeting in Athens, Greece, on Friday.

The theme set for the 15th Arraiolos meeting was the fundamental principle of solidarity to strengthen the European Union as well as promoting the Union's further integration.

The Presidents of Malta, Greece, Bulgaria, Croatia, Estonia, Germany, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Poland, Portugal, and Slovenia focused on the EU's economic challenges as well as those of migration and security affecting the EU.

Dr Vella said the affected countries, such as Greece, Italy, and Malta, should not be left alone addressing the issue and resolving every case on an ad hoc basis.

In his reaction, Greek President Prokopis Pavlopoulos described Malta's role in the migration issue as exemplary, while several other presidents referred to the Malta Declaration on Migration as the first step towards successfully addressing the issue, the president's office said in a statement.

Dr Vella emphasized that the EU's values, particularly those of tolerance, equality, and fundamental rights, should continue to underpin the work carried out by a new European Commission. This was also stated in the context of the challenges that the European Union is undergoing due to Brexit.

Turning to security in the Mediterranean and the region's political and geo-strategic issues, Dr Vella emphasised the need for stronger international controls on the trafficking and sales of weapons and ammunition as this was crucial to reduce the chances of conflict.

He said he hoped that the discussions during the Arraiolos meeting will translate in more permanent solutions, both for the Mediterranean and the European Union.

At the end of the meeting, the presidents agreed on the Athens Declaration, in which they stated that Europe needs to continue with a political debate on the best way forward, with an aim to propagate more diverse opinions and innovative ideas. In this declaration, the presidents expressed their wish for future meetings to be focused on the deepening, widening and enrichment of this debate.

Jeff Fenech's daughter's secret wedding at boxing champ's bedside

It's nothing short of miraculous. Jeff Fenech has flown into Sydney, surprising his daughter on her wedding day.

Against all odds, the ailing boxing champ touched down, making it to the church in time to walk an emotional Jessica down the aisle.

Jeff Fenech surprised his daughter at her Sydney wedding today, walking her down the aisle weeks after undergoing open-heart surgery. Jessica was married in front of an estimated 300 people today at St Mary's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon.

Fenech will continue to be monitored in hospital and undergo treatment while he is here.

Earlier, it was reported that Fenech was set to miss his beloved daughter's wedding this weekend after he underwent life-saving surgery in Thailand.

A Current Affair's Sylvia Jeffreys was lucky enough to witness the touching moment Jeff Fenech surprised his daughter at her Sydney wedding today. (A Current Affair)

But A Current Affair exclusively revealed that he was still able to see Jessica wed, when she and her fiance flew to Thailand to tie the knot beside his hospital bed.

Photos showed the bride and groom standing at Fenech's bedside, Jessica wearing a veil as she leaned down to kiss her father.

The three-time world champion had been conducting a training camp in Bangkok with several boxers he trains when he began coughing up blood.

Despite pleading to leave him alone, Fenech's fighters rang local paramedics – a move that doctors say may have saved his life.

"Fortunately, the boys ignored the aggressive calls to leave him alone and called an ambulance," Fenech's friend Dominic Jarvis said.

Jeff Fenech's daughter had no idea her surprise visit to Thailand to marry at his hospital bedside would be topped by her loving father's surprise. (A Current Affair)

Dubbed "the Marrickville mauler", Fenech's decorated boxing career saw him become a world champion at bantamweight (53.5kg), super bantamweight (55kg) and featherweight (57kg).

He represented Australia at the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles where he was controversially stripped of a decision-win against Yugoslavian Redzep Redzepovski, and won a gold medal at the Oceanian Championships in the same year.

A crusty Maltese loaf is among the world's best, according to CNN

Posted On October 18, 2019 - Updated 18 October, 2019 12:39pm

It is the recipe and the way the dough is made which together give the unique characteristic to the Maltese loaf. This loaf is much sought after by many, both Maltese and visitors.

CNN News Agency has placed the Maltese loaf among the world's top fifty. The agency explains how the crunchy crust and soft interior make it the perfect accompaniment for tomatoes and fresh olives.

The best Maltese bread is reputedly baked in Hal Qormi, so much so that in the times of the Knights it was referred to as Casal Fornaro, the bakers' village.

The word ħobża (loaf of bread) has various connotations in the Maltese language. Someone with an urgent need of something is described as 'needing it as much as bread' – għandu bżonnha daqs il-ħobż. When we ask about some particular character, the question is 'What bread does he eat?', x'ħobż jiekol, in Maltese. Someone who has done well in life is described as ħobżu maħbuż, literally 'his bread is baked'; anyone ending up without a job is described as 'having lost his bread', tilef ħobżu. And if some business deal goes well, the saying is that 'kien fiha biċċa ħobż gmielha'.

Dghajsa tal-Latini: Gozo Boat once again restored to its former glory

The major project of maintenance work has now been completed on the Dghajsa Tal-Latini - The Gozo Boat.

The boat is on permanent display at the Zewwieqa waterfront at Mgarr, and the work, which included a total re-paint and minor woodwork restoration work, was started a few weeks ago under the supervision of Peter Caruana - son of the original builder.

Wirt Ghawdex, in coordination with Gozo Channel organised the project, with the funding provided by Gozo Channel, the owners of the boat. The Ministry for Gozo provided the necessary electrical power for the work from a nearby location. Wirt Ghawdex said that it now awaits "badly needed" maintenance work to be carried out on the surrounding lighting system and the water feature that feeds the water below the boat. Photograph: Wirt Ghawdex

Students pay homage to Dun Karm Psaila

Report: Tony Dimech

Committee commemorated the memory of National Poet Dun Karm Psaila with a symbolic ceremony held near the plinth of the monument dedicated to him in Floriana. The ceremony, with the participation of students, was held to recall the date of his birth as well as to acknowledge his contribution to the Maltese Language and the National Identity.

Students from the Floriana Primary School paid tribute to Dun Karm who was born 148 years ago in Żebbuġ and left his mark on the National Identity including the versus of the National Anthem. Initially he began to write in Italian but then switched to his great love for the Maltese Language and became one of the founders of the Għaqda tal-Kittieba tal-Malti. His contribution to the language resulted in his receiving a Doctorate while being honoured with the title of National Poet.

Before the singing of the National Anthem, representatives of the National Festivities Committee, the Akkademja tal-Malti and the Floriana Local Council laid wreaths and flowers on the plinth of The National Festivities his Floriana monument. Another activity to commemorate Dun Karm will be held at San' Anton Palace on 6th November under the patronage of President Dr George Vella.

Kurds in Malta protest Turkish military action in Syria

Calls for Maltese government to formally condemn Turkish operation

Kurds in Malta protest outside the Turkish embassy in Floriana on Saturday. Kurds in Malta gathered outside the Turkish embassy in Floriana on Saturday to protest what they called a "brutal, unprovoked assault" by the Turkish state on Kurdish communities in northern Syria.

Moviment Graffitti, which supported the protest, said Turkey's invasion of the Rojava region had resulted in the "massacre" of Kurds and their displacement on a mass scale.

The operation, it said, was clearly driven by a "hatred of Kurds" and a desire to destroy "the egalitarian and democratic model being built in Rojava".

Turkey launched an offensive last week in northeast Syria against a Kurdish militia which is backed by western countries in the fight against the Islamic State group, but which Ankara accuses of terrorism.

The week-old military operation has displaced more than 300,000 civilians, according to the Britain-based Syrian Observatory.

Moviment Graffitti said the invasion threatened to revise the Islamic State insurgency, as thousands of fighters held in camps guarded by Kurdish forces would take the opportunity to flee and reconstitute terrorist cells.

MaltaPost will issue the seventh set from the 'Maritime Malta' series issued each year. This set consists of two stamps featuring a ceremonial boat and a gondola dating back to the Order of Saint John.

"We called upon the world to take action and stop the invasion of Rojava, the ongoing massacre of communities in this area and the renewed ISIS threat brought about by the Turkish government's actions," the group said.

"We also urged the Maltese Government to honour its Constitutional obligation to actively work for peace by informing the Turkish ambassador that Malta forcefully opposes the Turkish invasion of Rojava."

I came here to bask in Malta's climate and save her life

Report: Keith Demicoli
TVM.COM.MT

Many Maltese complain about Malta's humid climate. However, the island's climate is saving the life of an English female youth who found that our climate is a cure for her. Interviewed by TVM, she says that here she found the natural cure for a condition which controlled her body and almost her life.

For almost 10 years, the life of 27-year old Rachael Hollwey was controlled by anorexia. The girl who lived in London tried every kind of treatment, however, mysteriously her condition worsened.

Rachael said "demons are literally shouting in your head and I felt completely powerless every time I came out I got really sick and every time worse and worse".

Rachael ended up with a severe depression due to anorexia and treatment given as part of a scientific experiment for the cure of her condition. She even planned to commit suicide. "I had plans and everything to end it and just take my life really".

She recalled that on the day she took the decision to end her life, a sand wasp kept her inside her home and she then realized she can continue with her life. As she recovered from anorexia, the U.K.'s climatic conditions were affecting her hands and feet as doctors even planned to amputate them.

"My doctor said I don't know what to do, you're going to lose your hands and feet this time, I'm really sorry, unless you do know what helps, and I said when I go on holiday it helps, the climate or the heat, and she literally said 'you need to move'. I had four weeks to move to another country and get away from the cold, and Malta, looked up the humidity so everyone hates the humidity, it was good for me because it was moisture in the air and heat as well." Rachael, an instructor, has been living in Malta for a year and has no plans to move out. She told TVM that Malta's climate is saving her life, so much so that in August she visited relatives in the UK and had to return urgently.

"I went into such a critical state that I had an emergency flight back to Malta after three days, two days later I recovered like I am now, absolutely fine, had gained weight, I had lost 3kgs in the UK, and gained it back, hands recovered, no pain in my body, so Malta I literally have to stay here, I don't have a choice."

As the U.K. prepares for its exit from the European Union, Rachael has another reason why Birkirkara has replaced London as the residence she never dreamed about.

Meanwhile, on the 9th November, Rachael will organise a Pilates event in St Julian's to raise funds for organisations that assist persons with anorexia.

MaltaPost will issued the seventh set from the 'Maritime Malta' series issued each year. This set consist of two stamps featuring a ceremonial boat and a gondola dating back to the Order of Saint John.

Thriving for an Inclusive Society award for former President – Marie Louise Coleiro Preca

President Emeritus Marie Louise Coleiro Preca's inclusivity efforts have been recognised by the Unesco chair in bioethics (Haifa), which presented her with the Thriving for an Inclusive Society award. The award was presented to Ms Coleiro Preca by Prof. Luigia Melillo, rector of Pegaso International, during the PIConf 2019 held at the Mediterranean Conference Centre in Valletta.

The award ceremony, which coincided with World Bioethics Day 2019, took place after Ms Coleiro Preca delivered a Lectio Magistralis on the theme 'Beyond Ethical Policies', that touched on her belief that ethical policies were not enough.

She said: "Policies must be accompanied by political will and determination, by the participation by all stakeholders including children, by engagement of civil society; by active citizenship and a stronger focus on the wellbeing of society.

"I am aware that this paradigm shift will not happen overnight. It will take courage, sacrifice and determination by politicians, policymakers, civil society and all members of our societies."

Ms Coleiro Preca thanked the Unesco chair in bioethics and Pegaso International for the award, and dedicated it to all the children of Malta, Italy, the Euro-Mediterranean region, as well children living in the refugee camps all over the world.

Lord Mountbatten in Malta

Who wrote this to his wife?

I wish I knew how to flirt with other women, and especially with my wife. I wish I'd sown more wild oats in my youth, and could excite more than I fear I do. I wish I wasn't in the Navy and had to drag you out to Malta. I wish I had an equal share of the money so that I could give you far handsomer presents than I can really at present honestly manage. In other words, I'd like to feel that I was really worthy of your love.

Actually it is Lord Mountbatten writing to his wife, Edwina. I am reading Indian Summer by Alex von Tunzelmann. She is writing about Indian Independence and tells the story by concentrating on three of the actors: Nehru, Gandhi and Mountbatten. It is immensely readable and not too scholarly.

Lord and Lady Mountbatten with Mahatma Gandhi, 1947.

The Mountbattens lived on Malta from the late 1920s when he was attached to the Mediterranean Fleet. When Noël Coward came to stay with them they took him to Gozo. He stayed for a month describing it as "one of the gayest months I have ever spent with him and Edwina in Malta". Excellent historian of trivia that she is, A von T quotes his thank you letter to Dickie Mountbatten.

Dear dainty Darling, I could not have enjoyed my holiday more ... Please be careful of your Zippers Dickie dear and don't let me hear of any ugly happenings at Flotilla dances. Love and kisses Signal Bosun Coward (I know Bosun ought to be spelt "Boatswain" but I don't care!)

The Mountbattens' house on Malta was subsequently the first married home of Princess Elizabeth. It must have been a welcome change from post-war Britain

MORE ABOUT BANK OF VALLETTA

Thank you Frank. Good read as usual. Some feedback re my recent experiences with BOV. On 23/08/2019, Bank of Valletta notified clients via its website that it was going to introduce “An enhanced and more customer friendly Securekey”. Clients were given the option of:

1. Downloading a free BOV Mobile Application. Use was said to be “very easy”.
2. Exchanging their current (black) Securekey, (which was going to be disabled on 14 September), for a new (white) Securekey at any BOV branch. The website did not mention any specific instructions for overseas clients.

I chose option 1 and followed instructions. Instead of receiving a security code by SMS, I received what appeared to be hieroglyphics. After a number of emails to customercare@bov.com from 27 August onwards, I finally received an email response on 10 September which read: “... the BOV mobile application does not work with international phone numbers”. BOV should have made this clear to their international clients.

I then went for option 2. My brother-in-law was leaving for Malta on 12 September so I handed him my Securekey and a letter of Authority, and sure enough he brought my new (white) Securekey back with him in a sealed envelope. I followed instructions, had the duly signed receipt signed by a qualified witness, and posted the documents to BOV. On 1 October, I emailed scanned copies of the documents to BOV and asked for the new Securekey to be activated as I needed to access my account in order to pay three pending bills for my 98-year-old relative who resides in a Home for the Elderly. In response I was informed “the internet banking will be activated once the documents are received in original”.

Over this twenty day period I have exchanged countless emails with BOV staff – all via encrypted messages – and not got anywhere because, staff allege the original documents have not yet been received. Why does BOV bother to use secure encrypted messages?

A copy of my latest encrypted message to BOV, sent earlier this evening is enclosed.

So much for lip service to overseas clients.

Regards, David

It is 1961 and Malta is in the middle of an unprecedented social upheaval. The Labour Party is at loggerheads with the Nationalist Party and the Catholic Church. Maltese society is tearing itself apart. The private world of individuals is wracked by vengeful acts. Fear, lack of trust and hate divide families and neighbourhoods.

Migration is at its height.

Two families are waiting for the guarantee papers to arrive so they would migrate to Australia. Will Australia fulfil Ninette Muscat’s dream of living happily with the husband she loves? Will Australia give seventeen-year-old Rosie Farrugia a better life than the one she has on the island? Will she find the security and freedom she craves, and will she be able to reach her full potential?

Mental illness, passion and tragedy combine to make ECHOES an unforgettable and emotional story. This is a tender, thoughtful novel, rich in character and detail. It transports us to the drama of migration, and takes us straight inside the struggle individuals face during the first years of settlement in a new country.

Below is a comment by Mr John Demanuele, a Maltese TV presenter about Echoes:

Drogenik is outstanding as she seamlessly knits her personal experiences of Australia and all that was Australian in the 60's into her narrative. Her power of narration is supreme and poses a challenge to anyone to even think of ever putting her book down at any time.

The Edinburgh Military Tattoo in Australia

By Ron Borg - Adelaide

Ever since my early childhood I was always mesmerized by the brilliant sound of the Service Bands and captivated by the precision marching of the Servicemen in their shiny metal and colourful uniforms.

There is probably no better picture of this than The Edinburgh Military Tattoo held annually in Scotland. Three years ago, while visiting Scotland I walked through the Parade Ground where the Tattoo was to be held a few days later, after my departure. However, it was still exciting to look at the beautiful Parade Ground, with the majestic Edinburgh Castle in the background. Yes there it was the 'hallowed' ground of the Tattoo that I had watched religiously on TV for many years.

I had been to many similar performances in Adelaide before, but the Edinburgh was always on my "bucket list"!!!! Surprise! Surprise!!! My kids gave me my unexpected birthday present, 2 tickets for the "The Royal Edinburgh Tattoo" to be held in Sydney, WOW!!!

So my wife Agnes and I, flew off to Sydney and on Saturday afternoon, 19th October, we were there at the ANZ Stadium, an enormous stadium that holds some 84,000 people.

It was a beautiful sunny day with a light-cooling breeze. The dull drone of the crowd came to a sudden hush as the booming sound of the show introduction came over the multitude of huge speakers announcing the start of the show. A majestic Fanfare by the 3 Australian Service Bands (Army, Navy & Air force) opened the show in true Australian style, followed by a short song and native dance by an Aboriginal Troupe on the shimmering green grassed arena.

The background of the arena was an exact full sized replica of Edinburgh Castle, it looked really grand as the "Massed Pipes & Drums" band emerged out of its main entrance, complete with Bagpipes playing such favorites as "The Green Hills of Tyrol". What sight and sounds!

The program continued featuring over 1,500 performers.

The stadium was filled with the sights and sounds of 320 Pipes and Drums, 100 Highland Dancers, 13 Military Bands, 865 Military performers, 40 Scottish Fiddlers, and a 100 strong Australian Federation Guard.

The Bands were many and varied with their very different coloured uniforms, music styles and performance routines. There was The Swiss Drum Core that did some magical drumming including fireworks coming from their drumsticks. The Indian Naval Band had a style of their own. The Fijian Band was distinctively different and were accompanied by traditional dancing. The Papuan Pipes & Drums played some beautiful music to accompany the spectacular dancers from , Papua, Solomon Islands, Vanuatu, Samoa, Fiji, Tonga, and the Cook islands. The sight of these dancers was spectacular with the background of the Castle adorned by the burning flame lanterns.

After a short interval for the spectators to get readily available food and drinks, the show started again with the bands playing to the Highland dancers doing some incredible dancing in their colourful uniforms. The very versatile New Zealand Army Band emerged from the castle gates playing a variety of tunes, even the Liverpool Football theme song, "You'll never walk alone", and also laid down their instruments to do their traditional "Haka", the fiery Maori dance with their violent foot – stamping and off course poking their tongues and slapping their bodies, to accompany their chant.

The French Artillery Band were simply "Manifique", and The Indonesian Band showed, not only how well they can play their Bass Drums, but how they can also play 'with them' rolling them over their shoulders, dancing with them and even climbing on top of a stack of them! Wow! What a show.

The various Marching Drill Teams were brilliant with their formation marching and dancing as well. Close to the end the Combined Military Bands of Australia played Aussie favourites like "The Road to Gundagai, I still Call Australia Home", and with their singers joining them they performed more pop songs like "Staying Alive, and Land Down Under".

The 'Grand Finale' played by the Massed Bands, was off course, "Advance Australia Fair, and God Save The Queen", finishing with the ritual of "The Lone Piper" standing high at the top of the castle.

With all the cast of performers on the Parade Ground, the massed bands played while the spectators joined hands and sang "Old Lang Syne".

The crowd showed their appreciation with the tumultuous applause as 1,500 performers marched waving off the arena with the Massed Bands playing "Scotland The Brave".

To finish off our wonderful day, one of the delightful Scottish Pipers, even joined Agnes and I in a 'Mar sin leat', (Good Bye in Scottish Gaelic) photo.
